

Montréal Exchange's 13th Annual CADC Conference Begins Today MX provides thought leadership forum to international derivatives community

November 29, 2012 (MONTRÉAL) – Montréal Exchange Inc. (MX), a wholly-owned subsidiary of TMX Group Limited and Canada's national derivatives exchange, will host the Canadian Annual Derivatives Conference (CADC) beginning today in Québec City. The CADC, which is now in its 13th year, examines the challenges and opportunities that the international derivatives community is facing today.

"Montréal Exchange is proud that CADC has become such an important forum where buy-side and sell-side professionals, as well as regulators and technology providers gather each year to discuss and debate Canadian and global industry trends," said Alain Miquelon, President and Chief Executive Officer, Montréal Exchange.

This year, industry experts will focus on key areas including implementation of regulatory reforms, recent developments in central clearing, and how to identify opportunities in the Canadian sovereign yield curve and equity options.

The conference sessions will be available on the MX's education portal after the two-day event: www.m-x.tv.
